Family Advocacy

The Family Advocacy Program (FAP) focuses on building healthy Air Force communities by preventing, intervening in and treating family maltreatment. Three components of the FAP include the Outreach Program, the New Parent Support Program, which includes Family Advocacy Strength-Based therapy for couples, and the Intervention program. To encourage early identification of domestic abuse and help victims get the care they need while they decide what to do next, the military offers a restrictive reporting option for reporting abuse.

Prevention

Outreach: With a strong focus on education, training and collaboration to help strengthen military families, this service is a true resource to the installation. The Outreach Manager offers parenting classes, couples communication and relationship classes, stress and anger awareness/management classes on a quarterly basis. Additionally, briefings can be provided to agencies, units and the general public on topics such as child supervision, family violence, couples communication and anger management. The Outreach Manager works with leaders and agencies on and off base to identify resources for military families, foster working relationships and increase awareness of family violence. Family Advocacy Strength-based Therapy is a service that focuses on prevention counseling and is offered only on a space available basis.

New Parent Support Program (NPSP)

This voluntary program provides support, counseling and education to expectant parents or parents with children up to three years of age. Services are primarily provided through home visits. Educational opportunities and resources include parenting, breastfeeding and information for expectant fathers.

Intervention

Treatment: The focus is on clinical services to military personnel and their families by identifying and treating incidents of child and spouse maltreatment or neglect. Treatment options include individual, marital and family therapy, consultation, case management and crisis intervention.

Eglin Mental Health

- Treatment Services: The Mental Health Clinic offers individual and group counseling to individuals experiencing difficulty with personal or relational problems. Medication evaluation and treatment is also available.
- Educational Classes: The Mental Health Clinic offers a wide variety of psycho-educational classes designed to help individuals cope and function more effectively. Stress and Anger Management are popular classes that are offered frequently.
- Outreach: The goal of Outreach is to reduce the stigma associated with mental health. We can be invited to attend your unit's PT sessions, do an informal unit social visit and provide briefings on any mental health related topic.
- Suicide Prevention: The Mental Health Clinic can provide suicide prevention information to all personnel. The goal is to reduce stigma and train personnel to identify individuals at risk and intervene appropriately.
- Disaster Mental Health: Disaster Mental Health services are designed to help personnel involved in a potentially traumatic event understand and process their reactions in order to speed recovery and prevent later problems. We can provide education and consultation within 24-48 hours of a Commander's request.
- Crisis Intervention: Available for those individuals who are suicidal or having severe difficulty coping. Emergency evaluations may be available at a Commander's request for individuals they feel may be suicidal, homicidal, or unable to care for themselves.

*If a crisis occurs outside of regular duty hours, report to the Eglin Emergency Room.

Eligibility:

Programs & Services

The Eglin CHPS program is provided through a partnership of Air Force Materiel Command and Federal Occupational Health and is open to all DoD appropriated-fund civilian employees serviced by Eglin Civilian Personnel Office. Our commitment is to encourage your physical well-being and quality of life, reduce your risk for preventable conditions, increase your awareness of nutrition and health and provide opportunities for healthy lifestyle change through screenings and education.

CHPS offers a wide variety of health education classes which can be provided at the location of your choice:

- Briefings, lunch-and-learns, Commander's/Director's Calls, unit off-sites, or almost any other setting that you prefer
- Annual, no-cost Cardiac Risk Profile (Cholesterol) Screenings
- Blood pressure checks/screenings, individual consultations, special events and seasonal health campaigns/challenges

The AFMC/CHPS official wellness website is AFMCwellness.com. The site is "dot com" for use from your work or home computer .
(Website for Federal Civilian employees and Active Duty only)

School Liaison

Mission, Vision, Goals

The School Liaison Program aims to connect schools, families and communities in order to meet the educational needs of the military connected child.

- Promote communication between local K-12 schools, military families, installations and the community.
- Support parental involvement to identify barriers to academic success.
- Develop solutions in partnership with local educational activities and military connected families for successful educational and school transitions.
